

VERØX

Afro house, house and circuit, built to move a room that doesn't share a language.

Phoenix, Arizona

Short bio for listings

VERØX is an American-Brazilian DJ based in Phoenix, playing afro house, house and circuit — one style a night, matched to the event. Brazilian rhythm runs through everything he plays, drawn from his own roots, but his sets pull in music from around the world, in different languages, simply because he loves it.

About

A crowd doesn't need the words to feel what a record is doing.

VERØX is an American-Brazilian DJ based in Phoenix, Arizona, where he plays most weekends, with sets further afield in Mexico and Vancouver. He works across afro house, house and circuit — but never inside the same set. Book him for a circuit night and it stays circuit, front to back.

Brazilian rhythm runs through everything he plays — it's where he's from, and the music he loves most. But his selection doesn't stop at one border: he pulls in tracks from all over, in whatever language they happen to be sung, simply because he loves music and wants a room to feel that same range.

Most of his work so far has been private parties around Phoenix, alongside regular live sets streamed on Twitch and TikTok.

Upcoming

Music

Afro Session 001
Out now on SoundCloud.

Grounding
Debut EP, five original afro tracks. Finished, release pending on Spotify and YouTube, extended versions on SoundCloud, Beatport and Traxsource.

Sungazing
Second EP, moving into house. In production.

Setup

Brings a Denon DJ Prime 4+, a standalone deck that needs only power and a pair of outputs — no laptop, no media players, nothing else from the venue. Also plays Pioneer, so a house CDJ setup works without notice.

Needs from the venue: a PA with a spare stereo input, one table, one power outlet.
